

Are you our next Information Professional that will master “the art of finding”?

Uppdragshuset is a niched Swedish firm in an exciting growth phase. Our philosophy is that shared experience gives added value; with open discussions and creative exchange of ideas. The day-to-day work is therefore performed in close collaboration with colleagues and customers. We always aspire for continuous development, both of ourselves as individuals and of the company. Thus, we have ongoing training and projects undertaken in parallel with core operations.

What role does an Information Professional play?

- Analysis, searching and assessing the prior art situation of inventions
- Creation of decision-supporting reports assessing risks and opportunities with patentability and IP strategies
- Actively engaging in customer care activities and the establishment of new customer relationships
- Contributions to the development of Uppdragshuset by driving target projects.

Who are we looking for?

A graduate engineer, in mechanical, telecommunications or electrical engineering. Experience with searching and analysis of patent information as well as knowledge of intellectual property is meriting. As a person, you find it easy to work with people and engage in an open dialogue. You focus on achieving your goals and want to develop your own areas of responsibility. Fluent English is mandatory, and we are also particularly interested in candidates mastering German in speech and writing.

What you will get!

- Work together in a team of Number highly experienced innovation consultants
- Benefit from internal training program aiming at becoming a Qualified Patent Information Professional (QPIP).
- Empowered to independently working on client cases from all over the world
