

Are you our next Patent Analyst that will master “the art of finding”?

Uppdragshuset is a niche Swedish firm in an exciting growth phase. We work with clients from all over the world, primarily in Europe and the US. The day-to-day tasks consist of supporting clients in the handling of inventions and patent litigations. We provide our clients with the right information to support business critical decisions. Our team aspires to master the art of finding by continuous development, both of ourselves as individuals and of the company.

What role does an Information Professional play?

- Analysing, searching and assessing the prior art situation of inventions.
- Creating decision-supporting reports assessing risks and opportunities with patentability and IP strategies.
- Actively engaging in customer care activities and the establishment of new customer relationships.
- Contributing to the development of Uppdragshuset by driving target projects.

Who are we looking for?

A graduate engineer, in mechanics, electrical engineering or ICT. Documented experience searching and analysing patent information as well as knowledge of intellectual property rights is meriting. You have an analytical mind, an eye for details, and can keep the interests of the client in mind. As a person, you are efficient and goal oriented. If you are curious about cutting edge technology, then you will thrive with us. Fluent English is mandatory, and we are particularly interested in candidates fluent in German in speech and writing.

What you will get!

- Work together in a team of highly experienced innovation consultants.
- Benefit from an internal training program aiming at becoming a Qualified Patent Information Professional (QPIP).
- Work with some of the most innovative companies in the world.
